Kennedy Space Center

Kennedy Space Center Visitor Complex is where NASA made history and where it's still being made today. This is where humankind first left Earth to explore the heavens. This is where the future of space exploration launches, and where you can experience the wonders of space like nowhere else in the universe. Only here can you touch a moon rock, walk under the largest rocket ever flown, meet an actual astronaut, and glimpse the future of space exploration. Check out real launch pads, stand nose-to-nose with the real Space Shuttle Atlantis, see an actual Saturn V moon rocket up-close, enjoy a variety of 3D space films in twin IMAX theaters and experience the thrill of lift-off in "Shuttle Launch Experience."
